

Win the ELVIS Competition!

Invitation for ESL Schools

The ELVIS Competition is a unique event that will improve students' English communication skills by encouraging students to develop video presentations online. During the course of this competition, students create a video describing an English speaking movie or TV personality of their choice. SpokenSkills instructors guide students throughout the creative process. One of your students will then continue to the finals for a chance to win a $350 Amazon.com gift certificate for your school.

Participating schools and their students will be featured on SpokenSkills.com. Register your class today - one of your students may make your school famous!

Check out the ELVIS Competition for more details and registration at: www.spokenskills.com/elvis

Registration deadline for this cutting edge competition is September 30th 2008.

Why Participate?

- Student use video & the Internet - mediums they are familiar with and enjoy.
- It's a simple process for students. Students can complete the videos in their free time over a 4 week period.
- Simple process for the instructor. The class instructor simply has to watch students practice with the option to provide them with tips of how to improve.
- An activity for students of all levels. The competition is based on improvement from the first to last video so all levels can participate.
- Students will improve their English speaking skills. Though your students will have a lot of fun, they will also be working hard on improving their English communication skills and receive valuable feedback that will help them improve.
- Test drive an amazing tool. Teachers will get a chance to see how participatory media tools work and one example of the types of assignments they can create.
- It's FREE to participate AND your school may win the grand prize! The winning school takes home a $500 Amazon.com gift certificate and a six-month FREE subscription of SpokenSkills Tools for one class.
